

Self-exclusion

Version January 23, 2023

The Client may, at any time, instruct the Company to block his (her) Account and the registration in order to be o excluded completely from participating in gambling activities with the Company. The Client can independently determine the period of blocking, e.g. within a week, a month, three months, or unlimited period of time. Upon expiration of blocking period the Client can gamble again. The decision to block the Account cannot be canceled by the Client during the period of blocking.

If the Client gives an instruction to block the Account and its registration for an indefinite period of time, then the Account will be blocked for, at least, six months and may be re-opened only after consultations of the Company with the Client and at sole discretion of the Company. During the block period the Client will not take part in any marketing activities conducted by the Company. If the Account is blocked for an indefinite period of time, then within the following six months after the re-opening of the Account the Client will be limited in access to marketing activities conducted by the Company, at the discretion of the Company.
